FEATURED SELECTION

One day, a hare comes upon a tortoise. The hare initiates a challenge of foot speed. The tortoise accepts and the race begins. The hare, who was obviously faster, sprints ahead. He gets so far ahead that he loses sight of tortoise and begins to get distracted. The hare eventually forgets about the race and falls asleep. When he wakes up, he remembers he was racing, but by that time, the tortoise had already crossed the finish line. Moral of the story… “slow and steady wins the race.”

RELATED MATERIALS

This short fable discusses the consequences of begging for help when a young boy claims that a wolf is attacking his flock. One day a wolf really does and no one believes him.

In this story a mouse awakens a lion and the lion threatens to harm him. The mouse convinces the lion that having him as prey is not worthy. When the lion is later in distress, the mouse comes to the rescue remembering what the lion had done for him.

This fable consists of a man who accidently throws his axe into the water. When Greek gods offer him a gold or silver axe, the man is honest and says that it is not his. In return he gets all three. A deceitful man tosses his axe into the river in hopes of the same reward but lies and does not receive even his own axe back.

Two friends share their lives by inviting one another to their homes. The city mouse enjoys a small meal in the country but invites the country mouse to the city for something extravagant. Their meal is interrupted by dogs and the country mouse decides he prefers simplicity.

One day a man is driving his wagon that sinks into mud. He prays for the help of Hercules but the god responds that “Gods help those who help themselves.”

(There are many more supplementary materials that we will allow students to choose from for their skits or to aid them in writing their own fable. They will not be limited to those above but we cannot summarize them all!)

GOALS

- Students will examine the concept of the fable.
- Students will make connections between the morals in the fables and real life.
- Students will understand figurative language and how it is used in literature.
- Students will develop public speaking skills.
- Students will develop teamwork skills by working with a group to create a skit about a given fable.
- Students will develop reading fluency by reading a selection of Aesop’s fables.
- Students will develop reading comprehension skills by analyzing a selection of Aesop’s fables.

INDIANA ACADEMIC STANDARDS

English 3.3.2 Analysis of Grade-Level-Appropriate Literary Text: Comprehend basic plots of classic fairy tales, myths, folktales, legends, and fables from around the world

UNIT PLAN

Pre-reading

Activity: Students will choose a partner and compete in a three-legged race outdoors. After the race, the entire class will discuss what happened during the race. What worked? What didn’t work? Did you have to go fast or slow? What did you learn? Sometimes, slow and steady wins the race. Have you heard this saying before? Teacher will discuss and define a fable. After discussing a fable, the students and teacher will compare a fable to other genres. The teacher should also give students background information on famous writers of fables, including Aesop. The teacher should also mention the Perry Index, a way that all of the fables are organized and the number they are assigned in the overall text.

Introduce “Tortoise and the Hare” (prior knowledge, vocab, word walls)

Grouping: Whole group instruction

Reading
Activity: The teacher will read “Tortoise and the Hare” to the entire class. After a discussion of “Tortoise and the Hare”, students will read other fables in small groups. Each small group will read a different fable provided by the teacher.
Grouping: Whole group, Small Groups

Responding
Activity: After reading their fables, the students will participate in a whole class discussion. The class discussion will focus on the morals of the stories they have read and personal connections to students’ lives. After the discussion, students will write their thoughts and feelings about the fables they read in a journal.
Grouping: Whole group, Individual

Exploring
Students will go to the computer lab and explore different fables. Students should go to these websites: http://www.umass.edu/aesop/index.php; http://www.aesops-fables.org.uk/ and explore various fables and Aesop. Students will write the morals of three different fables and journal about their favorite fables. If a student finishes early, encourage them to explore more fables than what is required. Student may also choose to use time to consult the dictionary and look up unfamiliar words that are often used in Aesop’s literature. For example, students may not understand that the word “hare” means rabbit.
Grouping: Individual

Applying
Students will perform a short skit based on the fable they read in their small groups. Props will be included. After the skits have been performed, students will write their own fable, complete with a moral. Students will have time in class to work on both of these projects.
Grouping: Small Groups

Supplemental Materials
- Websites (computers) visit http://www.umass.edu/aesop/index.php
- Books (library access)
- Skits (props/costumes)

TIME SCHEDULE
| Day 1 | Students will compete in a three-legged race. Have students brainstorm ideas of genres of literature. As a warm up activity the teacher will provide a worksheet with various titles. Students will use experiences with the given books/context clues to guess what genre it may be. (For example, a book with a dragon in the title is likely fiction.) Have students give examples of books from the following genres: fiction, fantasy, nonfiction, mystery, historical fiction, biographies, etc. After they identify the different elements of other genres we will cover the specific elements that make it a fable. |
| Day 2 | Introduce Aesop (history of Aesop) biography handout/worksheet. Teacher can have basic facts outlined on the bulletin board including years that he lived, where he lived, etc. Students will be challenged to find more in depth facts on their own. |
| Day 3 | Concepts of figurative language, symbols and representations, present a list of euphemisms and clichés. Connect these to life situations. Language experience approach used to compile a list of clichés, and then leave these lists in plain sight for all to see. Students will then explore examples of metaphors, similes, word play, highly descriptive language, etc. |
| Day 4 | Discuss Tortoise and Hare, teacher will read to class, whole class discussion, questions that prompt critical thinking, Aesop’s language. Grand conversation. Choose word wall words. |
| Day 5 | Partner up students, each pair will be given the fable “The Boy Who Cried Wolf”. They must read the fable, identify the cliché, and respond by drawing a picture. |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Day 6</th>
<th>Day 7</th>
<th>Day 8</th>
<th>Day 9</th>
<th>Day 10</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Quick review of fable concepts such as the morals and the characterization. Do a mini lesson on figurative language and symbolism, word wall, make word maps of key words (hare, shepherd, vocab)</td>
<td>Review previous reading with group, discuss theme (teacher will do a mini lesson on theme) groups will discuss reasoning behind character selection.</td>
<td>Library day (use this day to work on finding appropriate materials, using library categorizing systems) task: find a book that could be considered a fable, or that has components of a fable.</td>
<td>Oral presentation of findings through the library, assign small groups (4-5 students) and give each group a fable. Today these groups will read their fable.</td>
<td>Analyze the given fable, create lists of fable elements, lists of words they don’t know, reasoning behind character selection, make connections</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Day 11</td>
<td>Day 12</td>
<td>Day 13</td>
<td>Day 14</td>
<td>Day 15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Review fable as a group, assign skit project. Deadlines, criteria. Students will brainstorm ideas with their groups.</td>
<td>Computer lab day. Students will be given certain websites to explore which supplement the fables. Some of these options will include videos. Some of this time will be used to do research for the skit project.</td>
<td>In class opportunity to collaborate with group, write script, assign parts. Teacher will need to monitor progress.</td>
<td>Rehearsal, bring in props, make sure skit is teacher approved, practice. Perform for teacher.</td>
<td>Present in front of class and parents are invited.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Day 16</td>
<td>Day 17</td>
<td>Day 18</td>
<td>Day 19</td>
<td>Day 20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Full class discussion, how did the skit go, was it fun, what was easy, what was hard, self reflection. Students can also write about this experience in their journal.</td>
<td>Overview of the writing process, review necessary elements of a fable, assign “create your own fable” project, do pre-writing (brainstorming) choose your moral for your own fable</td>
<td>Rough draft (in class)</td>
<td>Peer edit (revisions, editing)</td>
<td>Publish fables, compile fables into a class book. No longer Aesops fables, but now “insert teachers name here”’s Fables!” create Perry index for this book.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Day 16
Full class discussion, how did the skit go, was it fun, what was easy, what was hard, self reflection. Students can also write about this experience in their journal.

Day 17
Overview of the writing process, review necessary elements of a fable, assign “create your own fable” project, do pre-writing (brainstorming) choose your moral for your own fable

Day 18
Rough draft (in class)
Make Your Own Fable

Name: ________________________  Teacher: LRS, KNM, JAG, KMY
Date: ____________________  Title of Work: ____________________

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Criteria</th>
<th>Points</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1 or 2 or 3 or 4 or 5</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 or 0 errors, exciting</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 or 0 errors, exciting</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 or 0 errors, exciting</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 or 0 errors, exciting</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 or 0 errors, exciting</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Grammar, Spelling, Sentence Structure
- More than 6 errors, poor sentence structure, difficult to understand
- 4 or 5 errors, mediocre sentence structure, confusing or unclear meaning
- 2 or 3 errors, acceptable sentence structure, clear meaning
- 1 or 0 errors, exciting sentence structure, very easy to understand

Elements of a Fable
- No symbolism, nonsensical character choice, no moral present
- Some symbolism, poor character choice, beginnings of a moral present
- Proper symbolism, appropriate character choice, and a moral is present
- Includes symbolism, excellent character selection, and an interesting or profound moral is present

Content Quality
- Poor language, no transitions, lack of story
- Mediocre language, developing transitions, some semblance of story
- Engaging language, appropriate transitions, appropriate story
- Exciting language, transitions, interesting story

Writing Process
- No evidence of pre-writing, drafting, revision, and editing
- Evidence of pre-writing, drafting, revision, and editing

Teacher Comments:

Powered by TeAch-nology.com - The Web Portal For Educators! (www.teach-nology.com)
Checklist for Skit
___ Participation/effort
___ Use of props/costume
___ Accurate representation of lesson

Checklist for items completed in entire unit
___ Worksheet on genres
___ Info about Aesop/worksheet
___ Class discussion on clichés
___ Class discussion on “The Hare and the Tortoise”
___ Draw a picture of “The Boy Who Cried Wolf”
___ Word map of key words
___ Find a book considered a fable (library day)
___ Oral presentation about library day
___ List of fable elements
___ Completion of skit
___ Appropriate use of lab day
___ Write your own fable